The AV System is controlled from a 10” touch panel installed on the wall in the corner of the room. If it is dark, just touch the screen to wake it. The first screen you will see is shown. Touch the screen anywhere to begin.

The next screen allows you to select which mode in which to operate the system. It is programmed to function in four different modes.

Presentation Mode operates like any standard presentation system. A variety of sources are available and connections are available throughout the room for laptops or other BYOD devices. When you select a source, it is automatically routed to the main display as well as all of the floor boxes/mobile display carts. In this mode, the mobile display carts are used as reference monitors just to make it easier for everyone in the room to see the presentation.

Group Work Mode separates each station into its own independent system for work in small groups. The front wall plate input is routed to the main display, and each floor box input is routed to the corresponding output in the same floorbox. This allows for work in independent small groups, each with its own display.

Collaboration Mode is exactly that. It allows any source to be routed to any display to allow the small groups at each station to collaborate and share work from one group to any other or with the whole room.
